Stress & Air Pollution

We live in a stressful world. Stress is the additive in our lives that can make us miserable and cause our health to take a turn for the worst. What causes your stress? Maybe it's exposure to violence in the neighborhood or something simple like getting stuck in traffic or working near a noisy traffic polluted area. Chronic exposure to stress has long been thought to influence disease risk. And, exposure to air pollution is suggested to influence susceptibility to airway disease when stress is perceived.
